Brief description of the commitment

This commitment seeks that the Ministries define and begin the execution of a strategy for the opening of data, including citizen participation.

What is the problem that the compromise seeks to address?

The information and data generated by the government institutions of the Executive Branch are limited and not accessible in open data, which hinders transparency, governance, accountability and citizen participation, this creates a gap between citizens and the government, preventing the latter from having access to the relevant and necessary information to make informed decisions and actively participate in the formulation of public policies.

The commitment seeks to promote the opening of data in the Executive Branch, establishing specific strategies and actions so that the information is accessible, transparent and reusable, as well as promoting citizen participation in this process, it seeks to empower citizens and promote greater collaboration between government and civil society.

What are the causes of the problem?

There are no processes established in the institutions that formalize citizen participation, as well as for the definition and opening of data and information, from the point of view of demand.

Lack of guidelines that standardize the structuring of the data and its publication in the government institutions of the executive body

In some government institutions, there may be a culture of keeping information restricted and limiting access to it. This may be due to security, privacy or a lack of understanding of the benefits of open data (Organizational culture).

The opening of data requires technical, technological and human resources to collect, process and publish information in an accessible and understandable way. The lack of investment in infrastructure, tools and training can be a limitation to implement open data policies effectively (Lack of resources and capacities).

There may be a lack of awareness about the benefits that open data can bring both to government management and to the population in general. This can lead to a lack of motivation to adopt more open and transparent practices (Ignorance of the benefits).

There are legitimate concerns about privacy protection and data security, especially when it comes to sensitive information. These concerns may lead to a more cautious approach to opening up data, which may restrict your access (Privacy and Security Concerns).

DESCRIPTION OF THE COMMITMENT

What has been done so far to solve the problem?

- ▶ Participatory updating of the Digital Government Plan that has Electronic Government programs in which some of the standard projects are considered a) Opening of Data, b) Participation and collaboration.
- ▶ The organization of multisectoral tables for the co-creation of the update of the National Open Data Policy.

What solution do you propose?

Formalize the opening and participation processes in the Ministries. That there be an awareness and training strategy on the topics of Participation, Collaboration and Opening of Data.

It seeks to establish formal processes that promote open data and citizen participation in the Executive Branch, which implies the definition of clear policies and the creation of institutional mechanisms that ensure transparency, governance, accountability, access to information, which includes the implementation of a comprehensive strategy to raise awareness and training on the subject.

- ▶ Instance of Consultation and Social Participation -INCOPAS-

Brief description of the commitment

Based on Article 22 of the National Food and Nutrition Security System Law (SINASAN), SESAN is the institution in charge of establishing technical planning and coordination procedures between State institutions, Guatemalan society, non-governmental organizations and international cooperation agencies linked to food and nutrition security (SAN), at the different levels of the country (national, departmental, municipal and community). Currently, the Great National Crusade for Nutrition is underway; whose objective is to improve the health and nutrition of the Guatemalan population, with emphasis on children under five years of age, preschoolers and schoolchildren, women of childbearing age, rural and indigenous populations, in situations of poverty and extreme poverty. Currently, the Great National Crusade for Nutrition (GCNN) is underway. The results of the 2021-2022 GCNN baseline show that 46% of children from 0 to 59 months have chronic malnutrition; Although the methodology used in the ENSMI and the GCNN baseline methodology are different, in the absence of an ENSMI, this result can be used to determine the behavior of the indicator of chronic malnutrition in children under five years of age. at the national level.

The SINSAN structure includes the following entities: National Council for Food and Nutrition Security, Departmental, Municipal and Community Commission for Food and Nutrition Security, Technical Committee for Inter-institutional Liaison. In addition, they participate in the analysis and decision making, in the group of Support Institutions (GIA) and the Instance of Consultation and Social Participation (INCOPAS).

What is the problem that the compromise seeks to address?

According to the National Maternal and Child Health Survey -ENSMI carried out in 2014-2015, 46.5% of children under five years of age have chronic malnutrition. In Latin America and the Caribbean, Guatemala ranks first in the prevalence of chronic malnutrition. In childhood under 5 years, and the sixth place worldwide.

What are the causes of the problem?

The conceptual framework of the causes of malnutrition in childhood disseminated by the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) proposes three large groups: a) Immediate causes: related to the inadequate intake of food and micronutrients and type diseases. infectious; b) Underlying Causes: related to food insecurity in the home, which is associated with limited availability of food, lack of access to it and its inappropriate use; c) Basic causes: related to the political, economic and ideological structures in society that regulate access to resources, education and opportunities and that ultimately determine the poverty of families.

DESCRIPTION OF THE COMMITMENT

What has been done so far to solve the problem?

In recent years, from the political, legal, financial and technical points of view; The institutional framework of the Guatemalan SAN has been consolidated and several governments have contributed to this solidity, which has led to the establishment of new institutions, the creation of stable policies, an increase in the budget, improved ministerial articulation, opening spaces for the Comptroller General of Accounts and participation and launch new transparency and accountability instruments; This situation has led to the current positioning of the issue of FNS and chronic malnutrition on the public and private agendas.

However, since chronic malnutrition is a complex and multi-causal problem, there is little progress in reducing the prevalence of chronic malnutrition in children under five years of age. In addition, since 2015, no other ENSMI has been carried out to measure the prevalence of chronic malnutrition in this age group.

Currently, the Great National Crusade for Nutrition (GCNN) is underway. The results of the 2021-2022 GCNN baseline show that 46% of children from 0 to 59 months have chronic malnutrition; Although the methodology used in the ENSMI and the GCNN baseline methodology are different, in the absence of an ENSMI, this result can be used to determine the behavior of the indicator of chronic malnutrition in children under five years of age. at the national level.

What solution do you propose?

Facilitate access to information generated by SESAN personnel, so that users can analyze information related to the SAN.

What results do we want to achieve with the implementation of this commitment?

As part of the accountability and transparency processes, it is expected that, through the publication of open data, the user participates in the analysis and promotion of the FNS.

ENGAGEMENT ANALYSIS

How will you promote transparency in engagement?

Through the publication of open data on the page of the National Food and Nutrition Security Information System (SINSAN), related to the different activities carried out by SESAN personnel, so that they can be analyzed by users.

How will engagement help foster accountability?

Through the publication of open data on the SINSAN page.

How will citizen participation improve engagement in the definition, implementation and monitoring of solutions?

It is expected that with the access to open data generated by SESAN staff, users will participate in monitoring actions and propose solutions related to SAN.

Brief description of the commitment

The commitment seeks to promote that people interested in working abroad migrate in a safe, regular and circular orderly manner. To this end, it contemplates creating a mechanism that articulates efforts for the training of Guatemalan workers' capacities, providing periodic statistical reports on labor mobility in Guatemala according to the records held by the Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare, and implementing a communication campaign that reinforces the importance of migrating with a temporary work visa.

What is the problem that the compromise seeks to address?

Irregular labor migration to seek employment opportunities abroad.

What are the causes of the problem?

The lack of economic opportunities, violence and the desire to obtain higher remuneration lead to the search for job opportunities abroad, taking into account the demand for low-skilled labor in developed countries.

DESCRIPTION OF THE COMMITMENT

What has been done so far to solve the problem?

The Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare has strengthened the Temporary Work Program in order to provide an option from the public sector that promotes orderly, safe, regular and circular migration for those who want to opt for a job opportunity abroad. In this sense, the Program was institutionalized through Ministerial Agreement 163-2021; A redesign of processes was carried out to streamline recruitment and selection in order to respond to the needs of employers and be an attractive option to place their positions. It has also signed agreements with countries such as the United States of Mexico and Spain.

As a result of the above, the number of beneficiaries of this program increased exponentially compared to the 15 workers who traveled in 2019. In 2020, 119 workers traveled under the program, 916 temporary workers in 2021, and 2,525 in 2022. and only from January to June 2023, more than 2,600 Guatemalan workers have traveled.

Progress has also been made in the legal framework relating to labor mobility. In 2022, the Congress of the Republic issued Decree 10-2022, Law for the promotion of the work of the Guatemalan merchant marine abroad, which allows Guatemala to compete in the region to promote new opportunities for formal and decent work in the merchant fleet. for Guatemalans and promotes compliance with applicable Guatemalan labor legislation, as well as international standards.

Subsequently, Government Agreement 50-2022 was issued, which established the registration of recruiters of Guatemalan workers to provide services abroad as mandatory.

In addition, the Congress of the Republic also approved the Law for the promotion of temporary work abroad Decree 31-2022, which was presented by the Executive Branch, which makes Guatemala a more attractive country for international employers, thereby it potentiates the creation of decent work opportunities for Guatemalans who choose to exercise their right to migrate, in an orderly, safe, regular and, above all, circular manner for work purposes.

The Ministry of Labor and Social Security created the electronic platform for the registration of recruiters, which allows for better control of Guatemalan temporary workers and for citizens interested in a job opportunity abroad, learn which formal recruiting companies operate within the framework of the law to avoid being victims of scams. This platform provides an agile service evaluating requests within a maximum period of 10 days. Currently, 165 temporary workers are registered by private recruiters.

During 2023, as one of the milestones of commitment number 7 of the Fifth National Open Government Action Plan, in charge of MINTRAB, a reporting tool was incorporated into the platform, which allows the generation of statistical reports that will be published on the website of the labor portfolio, available to the population, academia, civil society, the private sector, among others, freely and free of charge.

What solution do you propose?

Address the problem from various axes: information, training and awareness. Periodically provide statistics related to labor mobility in Guatemala that allow informed decisionmaking, analysis and the generation of new proposals; manage articulated actions aimed at strengthening the capabilities of Guatemalan workers so that they have an attractive occupational profile, according to the demands of the current labor market, which increases their chances of being selected for a job opportunity; accompany the previous actions with communication actions that reinforce the importance of migrating in an orderly, safe, regular and circular way.

What results do we want to achieve with the implementation of this commitment?

Have accurate and periodic data, as well as an articulated mechanism aimed at strengthening the capacities of Guatemalan workers and that people interested in working temporarily abroad are sensitized and informed about the importance of migrating in an orderly manner, safe, regular and circular to minimize the chances of falling victim to scams.

ENGAGEMENT ANALYSIS

How will you promote transparency in engagement?

Through the publication of reports on activities and results of the Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare related to the promotion of labor mobility. These reports include the actions carried out to achieve the milestones and the budget invested in the Temporary Work Program. The information is also presented in the quarterly accountability report prepared by the Labor portfolio, which shows consistency of the data.

How will engagement help foster accountability?

The Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare publishes the list of recruiting companies that hire Guatemalans to work temporarily abroad that have the respective authorization in accordance with the Law. This allows the population to know which companies are formal and work within the framework of the law, which minimizes the possibility of them being victims of fraud.

How will citizen participation improve engagement in the definition, implementation and monitoring of solutions?

Citizens will be able to consult the statistical data collected through the electronic platforms related to labor mobility of the Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare freely and free of charge with which they can carry out academic work on the subject, analysis and solution proposals based on accurate data. and reliable.
